FEVER AND AGUE CURED BY A VIRGINIA LADV.—A Richmond correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writes as follows: This is the season of the year for chills and fever, and nearly all who reside on the low grounds of James river, or live in those portions of the city which side on the low grounds of James river, or live in those portions of the city which border immediately upon the river or canal, are shaking and quaking, or burning and aching with the dreadful disease. Quinine is a household necessity, but it often fails to cure. When it and all the doctor's remedies prove fruitless, the people about here know, or at least believe, that there is one thing that they can do which will infallibly restore and again set the "blue blood" coursing through their veins in healthful streams. often fails to cure. When it and all the doctor's remedies prove fruitiess, the people about here know, or at least believe, that there is one thing that they can do which will infallibly restore and again set the "blue blood" coursing through their veins in healthful streams. A maiden lady, sister of one of the heads of the departments of the City Government, possesses the power of instantly and permanently relieving all of those who come into her presence when the chill is upon them. All she has to do is to look upon the poor shivering and tormented subject, and at once the chill leaves him, never to return. She maybe her miracles without mystery, no works her miracles without mystery, no dark rooms, uncertain light, no burning incense, no cantation scenes, are necessary for the performance of the wonders that has made her name famous and given comfort and strength to hundreds and thousands of poor ague stricken mortals. She will receive no reward, present, or compensation of any kind, believed and that if she were to do so the magical power she possessed would depart. Thousands have come to her, many of them traveling long distances to do so, and in every reported case the person afficied has been cured. Now, I know your readers will be inclined to believe at least those who have been do believe—at least those who have been the many of the proposition of the sharper, and drawing distances to do so, and the result in such a marvelous and jot to have faith in such chill leaves him, never to return. It is estimated that last year there were built 6,427 miles of railroad in the United States, at a cost of some $300.000,000; and that, since 1868, 24,842 miles have been built, at an expense equal to half the national debt. Nearly all of this work has been based upon great expectations, and the country has been mortgaged ahead until there now remains little more to mortgage. The present bursting of the bubble will show where the country is, and upon what an apology for a foundation it has been standing.—[S. L. I could easily get the festiment of a hundred persons who would declare upon oath that they tried every remedy before they approached her, but after once coming face to face with her, the malady vanished. The make the malady vanished who were the malady vanished to her from her father, who, in his day, himself wrought many such strange of the country of the co

A MIND READER. - A young man named oan is puzzling the people Chicago his success as a mind reader. The covery of his powers was made acciby his success as a mind reader. The isosoveryof his powers was made accidentally about eight years ago, when he was a mere boy. A playfellow casually touched his forehead, causing sparies to count therefrom, and producing sensations which first led him to feel that he was able to real the thoughts of others. The first, public exhibition of young Brown's powers as a mind reader was given in the Union Park Congregational thurch in Chicago. The first test was that of finding an article hidden outside of the room. Young Brown took the left hand of the gentleman who had hidden it, placed the right hand on his forehead, letting it rest there a few minutes. Then he took the gentleman's right hand and field at to his own forehead. Pausing a moment he led the gentleman rapidly out of the block door of the church. He seen returned, his companion twirling a small locket in his hand, which he had hidden in the basement. Though blindfolded. Brown had led him to the hidding through the progress. He seen returned, his companion twirling a small locket in his hand, which he had hidden in the basement. Though blindfolded. Brown had led him to the hidding that as a straight as he could have gone himself. Then he led a gentleman to the place as straight as he could have gone himself. Then he led a gentleman to the ndelier of which he was thinking, then found a silver quarter hidden under a table, and wound up the first series of ests by pulling a watch key out of the ester's mouth. Afterward he spelled out on an alphabet placed on the wail the names of places in the minds of two wall the names of places in the minus of centlemen, and finally located a pain in a man's head by putting his hand on the exact spot where the trouble lay. Mr. Brown's mentor, said his Kelly, young Brown's mentor, said his protege's powers were like that of a magnet, in that they were stronger in cold weather and increased in strength the more they were exercised. He added that persons whose left arms were broken or who were partially who were partially intoxicated

Saw Snakes.—In Fayette county, near the line of the Chesapeake and Ohio Rullroad, there is a famous rattlesnake den, which has always been a source of error and fear to those who have looked ver its precincts, as well as to those who have even heard of the fearful revelations regarding the size and the number of the venomous reptiles which infest this poison-stricken cavern. In number their name is legion, and in age, size and downright radicalism, there are no figures or names to represent them. A short time since two daring young men resolved to make an experiment, by way of forming some insight as regarded their numbers, and clothing themselves from head to foot in suits of thick buckskin, with large sharp knives in hand, they sallied forth into the poison-infested region. They entered, cutting and slashing, the snakes rattling, hissing and striking at their adversaries; and when these enterprising youths landed on the other side, their clothes were a sight to see. As a snake would strike, his fangs would be deeply and firmly implanted in the buckskin. regarding the size and the number of the see. As a snake would strike, his fangs would be deeply and firmly implanted in the buckskin, and off would go his head by a well directed blow by the hand and knife. By making a fair count, it was found that two hundred and forty snake heads were attached to the clothes of one of the party and one headed and interest. party, and one hundred and sixty heads firmly fastened to the other. More would have been secured, but it was not s good day for snakes. But any one who does not believe the foregoing true story will be convinced of its entire correctness by inquiring at this office for the name of our informant.—[Greenbrier (Va.)]

What we owe to our Gold System.—
In the midst of the rumbling and tremors of the financial earthquake that has been felt throughout the Atlantic States, California has stood unshaken. Not even so much as a vibration has roached us. All along the system was board as reven so much as a vibration has reached as. All along the eastern sea-board from New York to Augusta (Ga.) there has been a series of failures and suspensions. Turning westward, the panic crossed the Alleghanies at a bound, spread to the Mississippi, the Missouri, the Rocky Mountains; but was arrested in its course before reaching the Sierras. In Richmond, Charleston, Augusta, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and Chicago its presence brought consternation and affright. As far West as Kansas City, where all the banks suspended in a day, it carried confusion and disaster. But while in all the business and finearial. disaster. But while in all the business and financial centers at the East the condition of things is so disturbed, everything goes on here as usual; while many banks and business firms have suspended or failed.
